Conference Information

This is the first Statewide Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) conference specifically targeting the needs of parks, greenways and public open spaces. The emphasis of this conference will be in educating park, urban planner, law enforcement and other interested professionals in the importance of these principles as a way of maximizing intended use of parks and green spaces while simultaneously reducing crime. This conference will provide technical information, case-studies and best management practices that have real world application in the local environment. It is hoped that all attendees will be able to increase their understanding of CPTED principles, initiate immediate improvements to their individual sites and begin to develop the human resources necessary for future problem solving and management queries as they relate to landscape management of natural resource properties.

Biographical Information

Rick Arrington is a native of Franklin County, Virginia with 24 years of law enforcement experience. Lieutenant Arrington became exclusively involved in the field of Community Policing and Crime Prevention in 1997. His successes include leading his jurisdiction to becoming one of the first Certified Crime Prevention Communities and insuring that his agency extensively trains officers in community policing and crime prevention. Arrington is a trainer for the Virginia Crime Prevention Association and the Virginia Community Policing Institute and has published numerous articles on proactive policing. He is a past President of the Virginia Crime Prevention Association and the Southwest Regional Crime Prevention Association. Lieutenant Arrington is the creator of the Armor Security Assessment instrument used by agencies across the Commonwealth. He is currently authoring a practical guide for law enforcement officers involved in proactive policing efforts.

Josh Brown is a Crime Prevention Specialist, Certified Protection Professional and retired police officer with 23 years of service.
